Wine grape and banana: definitely not in the same boat! The climate for the agricultural sector is unforgiving - that is only stating the obvious. For the second year running, the finest Burgundy appellations were ravaged by hail. Between Beaune and Pommard, 90 % of vineyard stock was affected. In the past few weeks, the banana has joined the wine grape in the "natural catastrophe" category. The recent massive floods in Côte d'Ivoire (Niéky region) have slashed the country's export potential by a quarter. Furthermore, in the last few days we have learned that the main banana production zone in Colombia, the Urabá region, has been devastated by a terrific gust of wind. Some 16 000 hectares of agricultural land have been affected to various degrees. For the banana plantations alone, they are talking about complete losses of 5 000 ha. In Central America, Costa Rica is also expecting losses due to extraordinary levels of accumulated rainfall over recent months. So are the wine grape and banana in the same boat? Well no, because while the misfortune of some means good fortune for others in the banana sector, with prices already strengthening, this is not the case in Côte-de-Beaune, where the product is unique, with no competitors and therefore irreplaceable. We will need to wait a year to sample it again, and prices will soar further. Whereas for the banana, we are talking about a common product. Whatever the production zone, we get the same few hundreds of grams of carbohydrates, nothing to stimulate the brain's pleasure zones. The market gives scant recognition to the social or environmental content of the product, and international regulations even deny States any preferential treatment. You don't get to be Aloxe-Corton just like that! And therein lies the whole problem. So we really shouldn't be surprised at the value of the banana: it's as low as the product is ordinary.

Source and methodology

All the figures published here are from European customs sources published by Eurostat.

Observation

1. Customs statistics make a distinction between intra and extra-European imports. Intra-European imports report trade and do not correspond to the real quantities available (double accounting with extra-EU imports is possible). Extra-European imports concern imports to the European Union from third countries (EU entry points).
2. Quantities from extremely remote regions (the four French overseas departments, Madeira, the Canary Islands and the Azores) have not been included in community imports since 1997.
3. The European Union had :
  - 12 member-countries: until 1994,
  - 15 member-countries: from 1994 to April 2004,
  - 25 member-countries: from May 2004 to December 2006,
  - 27 member-countries: from January 2007.

The 2012 and 2013 data provided in this issue cover EU-27.

4. All quantities are in tonnes.
5. The differences that may appear between the 2012 data published in the July-August 2013 issue of Fruitrop (No.213) and the 2012 data in the present issue result from later readjustments by the European statistical services.
6. Country codes according to the official EU norm:

Socio-economic effects in value chains

What are the social consequences of changes enacted in the value chains, especially when they involve large international agricultural product industries? How can we anticipate the results of changes in technical procedures, supplier, work organisation, distribution of revenue generated, etc.?

Researchers from French research centres (Cirad, Inra, Irstea, SupAgro, and University of Montpellier I) and consultants (Epsil'Hôm, CEP) set out over 100 pages their methodology and practices for assessing socio-economic effects.
